Thoughts, Advice, or Warnings

- Briefly review previous “A class” content for context.
- Use of drawing on white board to augment anatomy slides
- Frequent breaking down of words focusing on what their parts mean
- Frequent examples of ways to remember words that do not easily break down into known parts
- Periodic response moments as review by orally filling in the blanks
- Calling for students to pronounce words aloud in unison
- Use of analogies from within PPT and You Tube Video Links (See Below)
- Frequent inclusion of individual students by name in analogies and games, stories, etc.
